

IN THE SHADOW OF THE MEGACITY

Urbanization and Beyond

Saturday, September 26th, Rose Auditorium, 3 PM-7 PM

The Cooper Union, 41 Cooper Sq, NY

Urbanization is more than the growth and physical expansion of cities. It is a process that transforms territories, changes existing reciprocities and establishes new relationships between different places. In the Shadow of the Megacity will address the wider impact of urbanization, both within and beyond the city, in an attempt to trace the present contours of the urban and imagine its future.

In the Spring, a group of scholars, officials, and practitioners gathered on Cape Cod to discuss the implications of urbanization in rural settlements, focusing on questions of land use, housing, infrastructure and ecology. We are now carrying the discussion to New York to continue the conversation and consider the agency that architecture and design may have in relation to the processes of urbanization.

Symposium organized by Tülay Atak and Teddy Kofman

Stan Allen

George Dutton '27 Professor of Architecture at Princeton University

Alexander D'Hooghe

Associate Professor and Director of the Center for Advanced Urbanism at MIT

Susannah Drake

Founding principal of Dlandstudio Architecture + Landscape Architecture

Kenneth Frampton

Ware Professor of Architecture at the Graduate School of Architecture, Planning, and Preservation at Columbia University

Dietmar Offenhuber

Assistant Professor at Northeastern University, Departments of Art + Design and Public Policy

For more information please visit: [http://
intheshadowofthemegacity.
blogspot.com](http://intheshadowofthemegacity.blogspot.com)

THE COOPER UNION
IRWIN S.CHANIN
SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE

THE COOPER
UNION INSTITUTE
FOR SUSTAINABLE DESIGN

Image: Former Military Base in Truro, Cape Cod, Teddy Kofman

THE COOPER UNION