ON-SITE RESEARCH REPRODUCTION AGREEMENT

The Irwin S. Chanin School of Architecture Archive allows on-site visitors to reproduce a limited number of collections records for research use. Records may be reproduced for personal research use only: they cannot be shared with other individuals or published in any form. Researchers wishing to reproduce collections records must observe the following guidelines:

Text Documents & Publications

Researchers must request permission from Archive staff before reproducing specific records or groups of records. After permission is granted, researchers may reproduce text documents and published material as black and white copies using the Archive's photocopier. Any documents removed from their existing housing to be reproduced must be returned in exactly the same manner in which they were organized.

Archival Images & Fragile Media

Original images and fragile media may only be reproduced by Archive staff. Researchers should identify the records they wish to reproduce. When possible, Archive staff will scan this material and provide researchers with low-resolution reference images.

Digital photography is prohibited unless authorized by Archive staff. The Archive reserves the right to review all reproductions prior to their release.

Any intent to publish Archive materials in either print or digital form must be initiated through a separate reproduction request to Archive Staff.

I understand the On-Site Research Reproduction Agreement set forth by The Irwin S. Chanin School of Architecture Archive, and I agree to comply with all restrictions included in this agreement.
